

DISCO FEVER HITS PSEM

By Danivic Ramirez, MD, DPCP
St. Luke's Medical Center

The cold breeze of Christmas was no match from the heat that struck the members of the Philippine Society of Endocrinology and Metabolism as they celebrated Christmas last December 9, 2009 at West Greenhills Sports Club. The heat was from "disco fever", the theme of last year's Yuletide celebration.

The members strutted in their finest retro costumes and danced the night out with songs made famous during the 70's night club era.

The Section of Endocrinology, Diabetes and Metabolism of St. Luke's Medical Center played host during the night's festivities. Games were played and raffle prizes were awarded to lucky winners.

Production numbers with disco themes were provided by three training hospitals namely St. Luke's Medical Center, University of Sto. Tomas Hospital, and Makati Medical Center.

The evening's affair also became the venue to mark the birthdays of the December celebrants: Dr. Rosa Allyn Sy, Dr. Sjoberg Kho, Dr. Bien Matawaran, and Dr. Josephine Raboca.

The night of fun and glamour ended with a group dance participated by all members of the society.

